to learn how to change American money and use American case words. Louis Petropoulos, or some such name like that, with lots of "pops" and "cousins" in it, was walking on Seventh street carrying an empty basket.

A cop told Louis not to talk Greek so loud and to move on faster and not to poke around the sidewalk.

Louis grumbled something and looked daggers at the cop.

A minute later the cop again spoke to him and demanded that he move on.

Right at this time an old man called to Louis in Greek.

Louis then turned and swore in perfect English at the cop.

"I can curse—me no can talk English," he protested in court.

"You talk almost as good English as I do," said the court. "Pay a fine of $5."

Some News.

Last Wednesday afternoon Selma Martin sent her cousin, Toby MacPherson to the shoemakers with the only pair of shoes she had.

Toby had 50 cents with which to pay for the repair work.

He never got to the shop—the shoes were never repaired—and never recovered.

And poor Selma stayed in the house the rest of the day with her shoes.

It turned out that on his way to the shop, Toby met a friend who suggested a dice game.

The 50 cents disappeared in the friend's pocket.

The shoes were sold to someone for a quarter.

Toby sent a little boy around to see Selma and give her a foolish excuse about the shoes.

Selma thought for a minute or two, sent the boy to a girl friend of hers, borrowed a pair of shoes and then cried, she said, she has pitched into him and taught him a thing or two.

But now since the baby is with her, she has to rely on the courts for protection.

Harry was fined $15.

A Near Tragedy.

Just because Isaiah Bowden looks like another man, he came near getting shot.

Who this other guy is, no one knew, but rumor has it that he has been flirting with the wife of one Clint Jackson.

Certain gossipy individuals told Clint about this and described the man to him.

Clint hunted around for about a week—with a gun in his pocket, all ready to do business.

He ran across Isaiah on Third street. Isaiah was getting his shoes shined.

"Come down often dat chair," shouted Clint to Isaiah. "Ise gwine to tek some of de shine often yo bad skin."

And with that he poked his gun in Isaiah's face.

Just at this moment Isaiah, so he said, could see a whole line of people walking slow behind him, talking about how good a man he was and how natural he looked in his coffin.

The bootblack hollered murder and ran out for a cop.

Isaiah had managed to squirm out from under Clint's artillery and was some hollering himself.

Clint got scared and ran—but the cops caught him.

He realizes that he was wrong and mistakes—but that didn't help him any—$50 fine for him.

Bad Behavior In Bad Weather.

This Baltimore booze must have some funny kind of dope in it.

He thought it was a cover for his tracks well but he hadn't. The court fined him $100 or thirty days.

Just Like a German.

"Jedge, Ah doan mind mah husband hittin' me-but Ah does mind him when he mwen Ah has mah chile in mah arms.

"Eff Ah didn't hab dat kid in mah arms-Ah would hab hit broke in broke his face to him-he's always waitin' till Ah picks the chile up en den he hits me."

Fine business this is-hitting a woman when she can't very well hit back.

And that is what Harry Mason was charged with - and practically admitted.

He understands very well that if he jumps on Dorothy, his wife, when she didn't have their baby in her arms, he would get all that was coming to him and then some.

She weighs about sixty pounds more than he does.

Else why should a man after partaking of a little, want to lie down in the snow and risk getting the pneumonia?

"Get up from there," said a cop to Ellis Sherman. "Must think you're a snowbird, don't you?"

"I'm a free Ah-ah Sherman, aizen," sneezed back Sherman. "Andah, canah sit where I want to-sneezitirlish snow-wunnerful stuff, a it."

The cop picked him up. He was soaked to the skin.

"You're gonna be sick after this snow," warned the cop.

"Thail I care 'bout gettin' sick?" sneezed Sherman. "Shick not been shick ever since war started."

The cop then saw it was useless to talk to a man in this condition and took him to the box.

He called on somebody who passed to help him get away from the policeman. He swore at those who wouldn't listen.

He had a long record of disorderly conduct and charges against him and stronger.

CERTIFICATES READY FOR TREASURY ADVISES

New U. S. Vouchers Available for Public at Once.

The latest Treasury certificates will be ready for purchasers at once. Secretary McAdoo last night authorized the following statement: "United States Treasury certificates of indebtedness dated April 15, 1918, maturing June 25, 1918, acceptable in payment of income and excess profits taxes, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, and in all respects identical with Treasury certificates dated March 15, 1918, except as to the date of issue and from which they bear interest, will be made available promptly.

"In the meanwhile Federal Reserve Banks are authorized to issue interim receipts calling for definitive Treasury certificates, dated April 15, 1918, and in lieu of certificates dated March 15.

"This will relieve subscribers for certificates of this character of the necessity of paying so much on account of accrued interest. Subscriptions for these certificates at par and accrued interest will be received by Federal Reserve Banks, and they are authorized until further notice to make allotment in full and receive payment with the subscription.

"More than $100,000,000 of the certificates dated March 15 have been sold to date, making the total amount of certificates maturing June 25, 1918, to date, about $1,350,000,000."

LARD SUBSTITUTES DISCUSSED BY BOARD

Proposes to Refiners and Manufacturers Fair Price Be Fixed.

Refiners of cottonseed oil and manufacturers of lard substitutes held a conference with the Food Administration officials yesterday, to discuss the advisability of a maximum price on lard and substitutes.

The administration made the proposal that, as the cottonseed crop has been marketed and the supply of oil is in the hands of the manufacturers that the price received by the producers be changed into a fair price to be paid by the consumers, permitting only a fair margin of profit for the manufacturers.
